JOHN FAGGIANO JOINS DAYSTAR COMPUTER SERVICES

Faggiano responsible for business development for growing technology services firm

NEWINGTON, NH – September 18, 2008 – Daystar Computer Services, a technology provider of Website, custom programming, and computer and networking services, is pleased to announce that John Faggiano has joined its staff as director of business development. Faggiano brings to Daystar more than thirteen years experience in business development, marketing, strategic planning and operations management in the technology and financial fields. For the past five years, Faggiano co-owned and managed a successful audio, visual and technology services company.

In his new role, Faggiano is responsible for strategic planning, process development and tactical implementation. Furthermore, his expertise will be utilized in the ongoing review of Daystar's existing and new service offerings, ensuring their relevance and usability to seacoast area businesses.

"This is a critical role for Daystar, designed not only to grow our business, but to raise our service offerings to a whole new level," said Keith Bamford, chief executive officer and co-founder of Daystar Computer Services. "With his extensive expertise and like-minded business approach, John will prove to be a vital member of the Daystar team. We look forward to working together to provide the best possible technology services for both our established and soon-to-be clients."

With the addition of Faggiano, the local technology services company employs a staff of nineteen, consisting of network engineers, programmers, system developers and administrators.
